TOUR OVERVIEW

Bera, Rajasthan: This place has been famous for leopard sightings for many decades. In the past, the royalty used to frequent this area for their shoots and leopard sightings. As with the rest of the country, many of the hunters turned in to conservationists or wildlife enthusiasts, similar thing happened here. The number of leopards and frequency of the leopards increased and delighted the wildlife lovers!

Second very peculiar tradition followed here is that, the locals consider the hills of this area where also the leopard reside, as holy! Most of the hills here will have a small temple. This also protects the hills from any mining as most of the hills are known for the granite rock! This doubles as protection of the caves and its residents, the Common Indian leopard. There are estimated 60-70 leopards and each area will have 2-3 hills where a leopard family resides.

The locals live in total harmony with the leopards. One hardly ever hears of human-animal conflict in this region. The leopards are thriving as the locals don't disturb these spotted creatures!

There is a large water reservoir called Jawai bandh and it is a feeder for a nearby city called Jodhpur. It also provides water for the wildlife so the wildlife there is thriving. The Jawai reservoir is also known as a Crocodile sanctuary and has over 300 crocodiles!

This reservoir also aids in the transit and stopover of many migratory birds from the Arctic countries to warmer climate! So for bird enthusiasts, it is a treat!

Winter season is very famous in Rajasthan for its balmy weather and hospitality. Watching these leopards sitting on the rocks while you are at a safe distance and viewing or photographing them is a very unique setting!

Day 1-

You will land in Udaipur, lunch or late lunch and drive to Bera - 3 hours followed by bonfire and barbecue dinner. If coming by train, then there is a train halt at Jawai Junction, which is 10 kilometres from Bera. The resort will arrange a transport for pick up and drop off.

Day 2-

The day will begin with morning safari to the hills around Bera village. Most of the hills are within 5 to 10 kilometres radius and accessible in open jeeps. Tea/coffee/water will be carried along and after a morning safari. Breakfast will be served at the resort.

There is an option to extend the safari and visit Jawai reservoir which is also a Crocodile sanctuary and in winters one finds 14 to 16 footer crocs basking in the sun on the rocks of Jawai. Many migratory birds are also present in the winter months like Greater Flamingos, Demoiselle Cranes and several others.

Lunch is served at the resort.

The property has lot of foliage and several resident and small migratory birds can be seen and photographed.

The evening safari will again be at the familiar hills and when one gets information of sightings, we also move to those hills in case there is no sighting where we are positioned.

Tea/coffee/water will be carried along for the safari.

When one is back from the safari, the guests will get hot towels and a thirst quencher. After one is freshened up, there will be an evening wildlife movie or a movie about the day's sighting. While the movie is being played, one can get refreshments also. This is followed by open area dinner with bon fire to sit around.

Day 3-

The routine will be same with morning and evening safaris.

There will be a village tour/camel safari arranged for anyone interested before lunch.

Day 4-

There will be a morning safari followed by breakfast. The guests will then drive down to Udaipur for their onwards journey home or take the train from Jawai Bandh.
